ANDREW CARNEGIE RETIRES. Will Devote Himself in Future Entirely to His Philanthropies,

(New York Press-tth.) Prosecution of his works of philanthropy will henceforth occupy all the time and attention of Andrew Carnegie, and he will retire from the activities of the several gigantic industries which he has founded, absorbed, and extended.

Henry C. Frick, who is Mr. Carnegie's losest business associate, is the authority for the statement. He made it last night, supplemental to a denial that the Carnegie Steel Company, Limited, and the H. C. Frick coke companies had in view a combination with other steel inerests. These rumors, he said, were ab-

INTERESTS COMBINED.

"What was in contemplation," said Mr. Frick, "and what is now practically consummated, is the amalgamation under one corporate organization of all of the properties and interests of the Carnegie Stele Company, Limited, and the H. C. Frick Coke Company, and their subsi-diary and allied organization.

"Practically the only change in the situation will be the retirement of Mr.

Andrew Carnegie from the organization, he having sold to his partners his entire interest, Mr. Carnegie's intention being to give his entire time in the tuture to the prosecution of his great philan-

With reference to the charters which have been obtained in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, there is nothing to say at present, but it should be well understood that there will be no change in the man-agement of the various companies."

ENTERS A NEW FIELD. Mr. Carnegie's retirement from busiepoch in one of the most important in-dustrial interests in America. And it does more than that. It marks the endoes more than that. It marks the en-tering of a new field by a man of tre-mendous energy, who, if he gives half the attention to the sole pursuit of phigratified a similar ambition after exceptionally successful business careers

Andrew Carnegie is a strong, well-preserved man of 62. According to the stories circulated yesterday in Wall street, the interests he disposed of netted him something like $150,000,000, so that this pot boiler, added to the wealth he already possesses, will enable him to exercise his philanthropic intentions to the top of Wall street daily expects the official an-

FRICK PRESIDENT, MAY BE. The fact that the plans are so comprehensive and involve such a vast sum of money makes the efforts of the promoters public property, and it is known that a successful issue is at hand. Well informed men say that H. C. Frick will be the president of the new concern, and that its title will be the Carnegle Com-pany. The amount of capital still is in the balances, as the managers of several

In any event, there will be a grand consolidation of steel plants, and the capital will be in the neighborhood of half a billion of dollars.

Mr. Carnegie's last great gift was in March of this year. The sum of $1.750,000 was given to the Carnegie Institute, in Pittsburg. This was the most generous of his many benefactions. In 1884 he handed over $50,000 to Bellevne Hospital, in this city, for the erection of a laboratory, and in 1885 Pittsburg received the gift of $1,000,000 for a public library, music hall, and art gallery, and

and museum. BUILDS FREE LIBRARIES. In 1886 Alleghany City received from him $375,000 for a music hall and library, and in the same year he sont $500,000 to Edinburgh for a free library. Western Pennsylvania benefited largely from his generosity in 1887 and 1888. He established free libraries at Braddock, Ayr, and Johns Chicago University received from him the sum of $3,000,000, and the Washington Free Library $250,000. The Duquesne Institute received $500,000, and for American art he devoted $1,000,000. The Pennsylvania State College got $100,000, and for the organ of the Church of the Divine Paternity he contributed $2,000. The total of his gifts up to March of the present year amounted to within $500 of twelve millions—the exact figures are $11,949,000, and this is exclusive of the Carnegle Music Hall, in this city.

HIS WEALTH A TRUST. Mr. Carnegie regards his great wealth in the light of a trust. Fifteen years ago Wheel, and L. E., preferred.

"Money is left by millionaires to public institutions when they must relax their grasp upon it. There is no grace, and grasp upon it. There is no grace, and there can be no blessing, in giving what cannot be withheld. It is no gift, because only given at the stern summons of death. Peter Cooper, Pratt of Baltimore, and Pratt of Brooklyne, and others, are the type of men to take for a model. They distributed their surplus during the
